Article 5

The Qualifying Examination for Doctoral Candidacy:

Definition of semester: First (Fall term) semester is from August 1st to January 31st of next year.

Second (Spring term) semester is from February 1st to July 31st.

1. Doctoral students should follow university regulations, and complete 30 credits (not including dissertation) before applying for qualifying examination.
2. Students should apply for the qualifying examinations to be held in the following semester. The time and location of the examination will be decided by the Institute. It is usually held during the term of a semester and in the University.
3. The qualification for the examination:
 - A. Students must pass the examination in 2 years after enrollment and no more than 5 years (not including temporary leave). Upon failing the examination, student will be dropped from the program.
 - B. If students estimate that they will obtain the course credit requirement in the preceding semester, they can then apply for the qualifying examination held in the following semester.
 - C. The qualifying examination comprises both compulsory and elective subjects. The compulsory subjects are for the compulsory courses set up within the specific program (Politics, Economics, or Law) chosen by the students at their entrance into the Institute. The elective subjects cannot be changed after students submit their application for the examination.

- D. Examination subjects comprise two parts:
 - I. As compulsory subjects in the examination, students must select two compulsory courses that they have completed and passed within their specific doctoral program.
 - II. As the elective subjects in the examination, students must select two elective courses that they have completed and passed within their specific Doctoral or Master program.
 - E. The scope of the examination is in accordance with the reference book list decided by the Institute. The content of the reference book list should be related to the courses of the programs.
 - F. Each subject's passing grade is B-. Upon failing the exam, students are only permitted to retake exams for the same subject once.
 - G. Students must take two compulsory subjects set up for their specific program and two elective subjects. The exam time for each subject is from 8:30am to 5:30pm.
 - H. Students can apply for the elective subject exam only after passing the compulsory subject exam. Compulsory Subject Exam Schedule: first week of October and first week of March. Elective Subject Exam Schedule: last week of December and last week of May.
 - I. If students intend to cancel the examination, then they must apply for a cancellation two weeks prior to the exam date.
4. Oral Examination for Dissertation Plan
- A. After passing their qualifying exams for doctoral candidacy, candidates can then report their choice of dissertation supervisor to the Institute Faculty Council for approval.
 - B. In cases when the student's supervisor has difficulty in advising him/her, it is the student's responsibility to apply for a change of supervisor.
 - C. The committee of advisors convened by the student's supervisor must include any combination of at least 3 professors, associate professors, or assistant professors as members. The committee of advisors must be reported to the Institute Faculty Council for its approval.
 - D. The committee of advisors must hold an oral exam for the candidates' dissertation plan. Six months after passing the oral exam for the dissertation plan, the candidate can apply for an oral defense of the dissertation.
5. Publication: The candidate must achieve one of the two following forms of publication before applying for the Ph.D. degree examination:
- A. Publish one article as the single author or co-author of two authors in any SSCI or TSSCI journals within the period of Ph.D. program study, or
 - B. Obtain two points by publishing in non-SSCI or TSSCI journals with peer-review system:
Points computation method:
 - * single author: he or she gets 1 point.
 - * two authors: each author receives 0.5 point.
 - * three or more authors : each author receives 1/3 point.
6. Language Proficiency requirements: At least one month before applying for the dissertation oral exam, the doctoral student must take and pass any one of the following language proficiency tests and submit exam certificates to the Institute Faculty Council for verification. In addition to the language proficiency tests, the student is required to attend a minimum of two courses taught in English by different professors. The minimum scores required for the language proficiency tests are as follows:

- A. TOEFL iBT: 47 or above
- B. GEPT: Intermediate level or above
- C. TOEIC: 550 or above

- B. The dissertation title must be reported to the Institute Affairs Meeting upon obtaining the approval of the supervisor.
- C. One month prior to the candidate's oral defense of their dissertation, the doctoral candidate must organize a public presentation of his/her dissertation.
- D. The dissertation's oral defense is open to the public.
- E. According to Regulations 10, 11, and 13 of the University's Graduate Degree Evaluation, the members of the oral defense committee are nominated by the dissertation supervisor. The committee must comprise five to nine members, with at least a third of its members coming from academic institutes other than NSYSU. The supervisor should nominate one of the members to be the committee convener; the supervisor cannot be nominated as the convener.
- F. The duration of dissertation oral defense is 3 hours, and can be extended by one hour if necessary.
- G. After question period, the examinee must leave the examination room to allow the committee members to deliberate. If more than 1/3 of the members decide on a non-passing grade, the defense is a non-pass. If the committee decides on a "conditional pass," the student should make the necessary corrections to get the committee's approval. In case that student refuses to make corrections, the committee can decide to fail the student.
- H. The passing grade for a dissertation is B-. Upon passing the oral defense, the committee recommends that the Institute extend a request to the University to confer a Doctoral Degree in Social Sciences to the student.
- I. Upon failing the oral defense, the candidate can apply for a re-examination only once. Upon failing the second time, the candidate will be dropped in accordance with General Academic Regulations for NSYSU.

Article 6

Prior to applying for the dissertation oral exam, applicants must attend at least 10 academic conferences, seminars and/or speeches held by the Institute. In addition, applicants must abide by NSYSU's regulations on academic Ethics.

Article 7

Candidates who fulfill all the aforementioned requirements can apply for graduation.

Article 8

This regulations is passed by the Institute and the College of Social Sciences, NSYSU, and thereby signed by the President of the University. Any amendment of these regulations must follow the same procedure.
